The following legal frameworks are relevant to nude, abstract, and artistic photography and artwork in South Africa: 1. Films and Publications Act 65 of 1996 – regulates the distribution of material, ensuring it is not child pornography or unlawful hate speech. 2. Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996 – protects freedom of expression, including artistic creativity (Section 16), while excluding advocacy of hatred or incitement to violence. 3. Children's Act 38 of 2005 – prohibits the exploitation or use of children in pornographic or sexualised materials. 4. Common Law on Obscenity – prohibits the production or distribution of material deemed harmful or degrading, though artistic merit is a recognised defence.
